NICHHA ARCHITECTURAL WALL PANELS PASS FIRE WALL ASSEMBLY TEST
Architectural Wall Panels meet strict Canadian standards in wood wall assemblies

ATLANTA – Nichiha USA, a leading manufacturer of commercial fiber cement cladding, is proud to announce the passage of its Architectural Wall Panels in the Canadian CAN/ULC-S134-13 test – the standard test of wall assemblies in wood-built, multi-story buildings. Nichiha is committed to exceeding building industry standards and is proud to produce a product that will greatly assist builders and architects in the Canadian marketplace.

“It is important to us as a company that our products meet or surpass the current building standards. Our customers need reliable and cost-effective products for their projects. Our fire wall approval shows our dedication to innovation and our commitment to leading the way in meeting building industry standards,” said Michael Cobb, Nichiha Vice President of Sales and Marketing.

Not only is wood-built construction the ideal choice for sustainable building, it is also a cost-effective solution. The addition of Nichiha Architectural Wall Panels ensures developers that their projects remain within budget while meeting the highest building standards.
